

Once Around The Park #03

Once Around the Park is an innovative and exclusive band. It's not every day that you get to hear the popular musicians live: Most often they're scattered all over the world, playing with Raveonettes, Paul Motian and Warwick Avenue.

In 1997 Once Around The Park won a Danish Grammy for its first cd, UNITY. The music critics called it "unique" and "essential", and in 2001 the band released THIS IS THE SOUND OF MUSIC, which was described as "ground-breaking" and "a truly original release".

Now Once Around The Park has been in the studio again and continues its excursions with creativity, concentration and competence. The band members are strong personalities, but that never gets in the way of the ensemble sound, which is modern and poetic, lyrical, dark and shimmering. It's no use being narrow-minded when #03 is being played. The fascinating music universe holds the listener's attention with its diversity and the many layers permeating the band's music; music that never aims at being difficult and unapproachable - on the contrary. It's modern, open fusion music with the wing span of an eagle - recklessly taking off into any musical direction, and impossible to put a label on. Music that will not let go, like the soundtrack to a film never seen.

Once Around The Park has created its own exclusive universe - and that's a nice place to be.
